Be Part of Something Powerful.

The Breast Cancer Education Conference is more than an event—it's a lifeline. As the only public event of its kind in the Twin Cities, it offers survivors, caregivers, healthcare professionals and community members direct access to expert-led sessions, trusted resources, and healing connections.

Now in its 25th year, the conference stands as a testament to what's possible when community and compassion come together.

Sponsorships play a vital role in keeping this program accessible to all. Your support helps underwrite scholarships, reduce barriers to attendance, and ensure this life-changing day remains open to everyone who needs it.

Together, We Make a Difference

By sponsoring the Breast Cancer Education Conference, you're not only supporting a life-changing event—you're connecting with a passionate and engaged audience.

Your support helps keep the event accessible for attendees while giving your brand valuable exposure. The conference is volunteer-led and survivor-driven, but we need sponsor support to continue offering this full-day program at an affordable cost.

Sponsorship Benefits:

- Connect with an engaged audience through meaningful, interactive experiences
- Build relationships with potential clients and referral partners
- Enhance brand visibility through trusted association
- Align with a respected cause and health-focused non-profit
- Showcase your business through samples, give-aways, and on-site marketing

Partners like you make this conference possible.

Spotlight on Keynote Speakers

Announcing the return of two of BCEA's most respected and engaging keynote speakers! Their voices have helped shape this event into the trusted, transformative experience it is today — and your support makes this possible.

Keith L. Knutson, Ph.D.
Professor of Immunology, Mayo Clinic — a leader in breast cancer vaccine development and immunotherapy research.

Gregory A. Plotnikoff, MD, MTS, FACP
Founder, Minnesota Personalized Medicine — nationally respected physician, teacher, and author.
